Accommodation

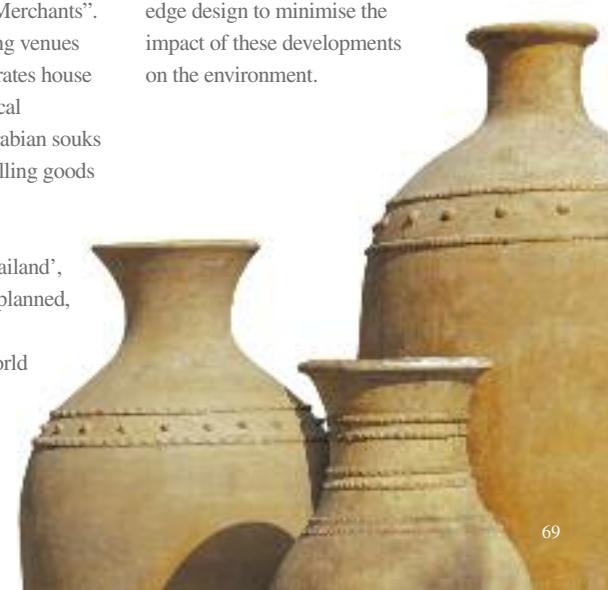

Here we feature some excellent, established hotels soon to be joined by many more. Dubai is a City that needs energy to fuel year-round air-conditioning and pump the network of waterways that soften its desert edges. In the future, we hope to bring you examples of how Dubai has pioneered cutting edge design to minimise the impact of these developments on the environment.

Long before the discovery of oil, Dubai was known as the “City of Merchants”. Today sophisticated shopping venues such as the Mall of the Emirates house designer shops alongside local merchandise. Traditional Arabian souks are also integral to Dubai selling goods from spices to gold.

Looking to the future, ‘Dubailand’, one of many developments planned, will be twice the size of Florida’s Walt Disney World Resort and feature unique entertainment experiences
